To the editor of the Alexandria Gazette:

Meddlesome legislation is bad, and it may be stated as a wise and just principle that true encouragement of industry consists in allowing each and every man perfect liberty to employ his own labor and capital as he may choose or elect, and that no unjust favoriteism, preference, or undue privilege be granted to any one individual or class of individuals for the facilitation or accumula-tion of wealth. The object of government is to protect men in the free use and enjoyis to protect men in the free use and enjoyment of the reward of their labor, and the JUST RECEIVED profits of their industry should be so secured that the greed of class legislation could not amper with them.

Both labor and capital should be left free o work out their own reward without the to work out their own reward without the slightest interference from legislation, and whenever a conflict does occur between labor and capital it is almost always the result of some direct or indirect interference of legislative action, in giving the one more or less advanta, e over the other. If Congress has any power at all to interfere with the natural relations of labor and capital, it is stoply, to neglect regulations to insure is simply to perfect regulations to insure justice in the conduct of their relations, and Congress can no more meddle, by law, with such relations, without causing evil and victous results, than it could were it to attempt to legislate upon the laws that govern the vicissitudes of the weather, without making itself absurdly ridiculous.

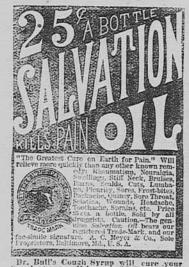

The relation between labor and capital must be left unembarrassed by meddlesome legislation, and allowed to regulate their own dependence, one upon the other; and any attempt to protect the one works un-NAILS LIME, CEMENT, CALCINED PLASTER, &c., &c., &c. to maintain in reference to capital and labor, and the politician or Congressman who vanuts himself as the special supporter and defender of American labor and capital, is a busy-body and a mischief maker, and finally proves himself to be powerless to do good, but powerful to do evil, and that continually

Labor and capital must not be officiously dealt with if it is not desirable to make one an evil to the other; but cupidity is always cunning, and the desire of one class of men to encroach upon, or take, without a fair and honorable return, a part of the earnings of another is human nature, and this result obtained by class legislation; and if successful efforts to obtain dishonorable gains under false pretenses be considered enterprise and the appropriation of such gains to increase wealth be called prosperity or "advanced ideas," then, under Congressional of such advantages. The adaptability of labor and the ability of capital must be left to be harmonized by the self-sustaining and all-sufficient laws of supply and demand, and in their own way and time should be

Capital is the result of industry and economy; and there is no law of either nolitical economy or the science of governpolitical economy or the science of govern-ment to prevent the laborer from becoming the capitalist. The natural source of wealth is industry or the industries of business; and all other modes of acquiring wealth are ac-cidental or artificial. Labor should reform itself, and stop all drains upon its earnings that tend to consume its profits, and prevent its savings; and should investigate those protective tariff laws of Congress, which, while claiming to benefit labor, do take from the consumers of the United States six hundred millions of dollars every year, to be paid to a few lavored manufac turers and their immediate employees; and should further ascertain if the repeal of these promissory laws, which are made for the gain of the few, to the loss of the many, IN PAPER BOTTLES. would not be the means of saving annually to labor a sum equal to ten dollars, to every man, woman and child in the United States. Therefore, it should be the primary object of labor to endeavor to cheapen the price of Stalls Nos. 2 and 3 City Market, and Fish House No. 1 Corporation Fish Wharf. [mb4 2m] without this effort it should not demand a without this effort it should not demand a greater sum for its services than the capital engaged in ordinary business can afford to pay.
